THE 'GRAF ZEPPELIN' POLAR FLIGHT OF JULY 1931

There were no recorded Zeppelin airship flights that directly involved Newfoundland. Mail to and from the Dominion would have been sent via the USA or Canada, and this postcard addressed to Grand Falls, Newfoundland is one of the few mail items that were part of a mail consignment carried on a particular flight in 1931.

In order to raise funds for an arctic surveying expedition arrangements were made for the 'Graf Zeppelin' airship to rendezvous with a submarine in the north polar regions, and there to exchange mail and passengers. The airship would then continue on its surveying mission. The American submarine proved unfit for the intended trip, even after a refit in Trondheim, Norway. Fortunately the Soviet Union was mounting a scientific expedition to the archipelago of Franz Joseph Land with the ice-breaker 'Malygin', which proved a ready-made alternative plan and was readily agreed.

Postcard sent from Staken, Berlin dated 25.7.31, also bearing the receiving cancel from on board the icebreaker 'Malygin' 27.7.31 at Grand Falls.

On 24th July the 'Graf Zeppelin' took off from Friedrichshafen, Germany and following an over-night stop at Staken, Berlin to take on more mail and passengers it headed for Leningrad in the USSR. Again it took on more supplies for the Franz Joseph expedition. The flight continued on the 26th, rendezvousing with the 'Malygin' in the bay of Hocker Island, where the exchanging was carried out. Mail taken on board the 'Malygin' received a special handstamp, BRISE GLACE 'MALYGIN' ARTIQUE 27-7-31. A special cachet was applied to mail items on board the airship. When the icebreaker finally docked the mail was sent to destinations by normal surface routes.
